In all of the modern operating systems, saving and loading files is an essential task. After all, we would like to work with the existing documents, and not start from a clean state each time we open a file. That's why there are so many backup tools available. Among them, there's one which you may find useful and have fun with. The name of the application is RescueIt. RescueIt is a great tool that allows you to save and load any kind of file in a fast and simple way. It has an intuitive interface that lets you easily choose what type of files you wish to save and load. The software offers several other great features. For example, RescueIt allows you to unzip compressed files. You can also move or cut files, change permissions and create backups. And, as I said, all of these features are easily available. That's why RescueIt is a great utility for every file manager. It just requires an excellent package to work. Halftone Search For Google Desktop

KeyMacro allows you to use your own set of keyboard shortcuts. Instead of the default "Start - D - G" sequence of Google Desktop search, you can use any combination of keyboard keys of your choosing. As for the functionality, the program provides two main functions. Firstly, it allows you to configure your keyboard shortcuts. You can use "hotkeys" to launch the Google Desktop without requiring you to click on the Start - D - G icon, for example. The program allows you to edit the default shortcuts. Another feature is that KeyMacro allows you to keep "your" Google Desktop search history. This allows you to continue a search that you were interrupted. To do that, simply close the program and open it again. You can use the "Recent Searches" section to list all the searches that you have made on Google Desktop with the KeyMacro hotkeys. You can restore a history saved search. MAJOR FEATURES: In-built Document Images viewer; Ability to launch an application from a shortcut key; Webarchive (mht) support; Python scripting support. Halftone Search is software that claims to do the same thing that Google Desktop does, let you search the web through your PC. Although I found Halftone Search to be significantly more efficient and effective than Google Desktop and the Windows search engine, a few features that are critical to me were not included. I use Halftone Search for everything from searching my documents and email to conducting a web search. I love being able to search within the programs I am using without having to open a web browser first. I also love being able to 1d6a3396d6

What's New in the Halftone Search For Google Desktop?

Halftone Search for Google Desktop is a powerful tool that allows you to make searches on your local PC the same way as you search the WEB with Google. But what is good in general cannot be absolutely perfect for every particular case. Halftone Search from Trietech is a free Google Desktop add-on that offers some advanced Google Desktop functionality to MS Windows users. Halftone Search for Google Desktop is a tool that allows you to search the entire web. Google Desktop uses an HTML interface. It's fine for the net, but on your local desktop you would certainly prefer an application that uses native Windows controls. Halftone Search solves this problem by offering you an alternative Google Toolbar UI. With the Halftone Search, you can highlight search terms in the results, customize fonts, etc. The program can extract compressed files on-the-fly and show their contents. It also provides several ways to make searches. You can choose from a pop-up menu in your Windows tray, a form or a dockable toolbar in the main program window. In addition to the interface enhancements, Halftone Search also extends the Google Desktop search engine itself. As you may know, Google Desktop uses "drivers" to collect searchable data from your local files. "Drivers" are plugins that allow it to understand specific file formats. Halftone Search installs drivers for compressed file archives (rar, zip, arj, tar, gz, bz2, etc.), MS Help v.2 files (just imagine a searchable index of all the help files on your disks), plain-text files with unicode support, web archives (mht) plus all the drivers you may have installed by MSN Desktop Search. With Halftone Search you can also manage all the installed drivers. With all of the above in mind, we are quickly driven to the conclusion that Halftone Search is a must-have add-on for every Google Desktop user with a Windows powered PC. About Author Trietech writes software reviews, especially for freeware and shareware, sometimes he even releases the software for free. He is a big fan of Internet technology and would like to bring you fresh and useful data in his reviews. Headgear (e.g., hats, caps, cloches, etc.) are widely worn for a variety of reasons. Headgear is commonly worn in both formal and casual attire, such as, for example, work settings. Headgear may also be used for protection, whether against the elements, against an environment, against an individual, or against injury. In the past, several types of headgear have been created. One type of conventional headgear, which may also be referred to as a baseball cap, is generally small in size, is lightweight, and is typically made of fabric. While generally useful in various settings,
